

Obsolete and yet truly valuable

Many people have furniture and household effects that are in good working order and that are too good to throw away. The Office for Environmental Protection provides information on options for giving away viable articles.

Used products conserve raw material resources, and costs of waste disposal are saved.

The best waste is always waste that doesn't arise in the first place!

Repair cafés

REPAIR INSTEAD OF BUYING NEW:

Avail of the services offered by repair cafés. At these repair workshops, experts help others to help themselves. Often, they can also repair household appliances etc. on the spot. This will help you save money and contribute towards protecting the environment.

The associations announce the dates in the press or detail them in a leaflet kept at the various locations.

Don't throw it away: Pass it on!

FLEA MARKETS and PAWN SHOPS also offer a good way to prevent waste. As time goes by, many articles that are still usable lose their value for the owner. For other people, however, they are eminently useful. For a gift to be well-received, it does not have to be new: Used "treasures" are frequently to be found at flea markets, on online marts or in pawn shops.

You will find the dates for flea markets in Rostock in the daily newspapers, and the addresses of pawn shops in the Yellow Pages.
